

Telelingua Project Solutions

INTERIUS Internal Solution

The requirements for a successful multilingual market presence are continuously increasing in all industries and markets. This is on the one hand due to increasing translation volumes and faster turnaround times and on the other hand to the specific expertise that all participants involved in the process bring to the table to ensure efficient and smooth processing.

Process and cost optimization through a central, internal language department

Telelingua Project Solutions focuses on optimizing the processes around the "translation processing supply chain" - from designing individual language departments with proven technologies to advanced automation packages and efficient use of translation memories and terminology databases.

In order to ensure efficient, secure, and high-quality multilingual market coverage in the future, as translation needs grow and evolve, internal language departments must continuously optimize and adapt their own processes accordingly. Fast turnaround times, higher productivity, consistent and uniform translation quality, but also flexibility in the event of a short-term increase in demand are decisive factors.

With more than 30 years of market presence and the continuous development of new, innovative software solutions for efficient translation project management, Telelingua has the experience and know-how to advise your company on optimal process solutions and workflow structures and to support your company in improving the performance and flexibility of its language department. If you need a custom software solution, let Telelingua design it for you or use the programs specially developed by Telelingua for the optimal handling of language services.

Telelingua Project Solutions takes over the overall concept development of your future internal language department for you - from staffing plus training of new specialists, to setting up processes and workflows, to the selection of suitable software as well as integration into your existing systems.
